ONE TO BE CALLED "TEDDY"

MANY NAMES SUGGESTED FOR THE FOUR BABY LIONS.

Mother and Children Are Doing Well -All in Readiness for Elks'

Carnival.

Born, Sunday, February 2, at Convention Hall, 5th and L streets northwest, four baby lions. "Both mother and children are doing nicely, thank you," said a polite attache of the Elks' Midwinter Carnival when asked by a Star reporter concerning the physical welfare of the four baby lions who first saw light at Convention Hall yesterday. "What are the names of the dear little darlings?" asked a blushing maiden who curiously inspected the newcomers. "Haven't any yet, mum," the attache replied, as he picked one of the chubby fellows up and snugged it closely within his coat. "All sorts of names have been suggested. One of 'em is sure to be called

'Teddy.' You may bet on that. "At all events, they are the dearest, cutest, sweetest things in the world," observed the pretty maiden. "Be sure and send me a card to the christening, won't vou?" A smile lighted up her face when she was assured that she should not be overlooked upon that eventful occasion. Whatever names may be finally selected, the four youngsters are sure to prove one of the strongest attractions at the carnival, especially to those of the fair sex.

mother is a handsome, matronly looking African lioness, named Nellie. She is seven years old, but this is not the first time that she has increased the population of Bostock & Ferari's trained animals, of which aggregation she has been a feature nearly all her life.

Quadruplets Unusual in Lions.

Several years ago Nellie became the mother of another litter of tawny whelps in Alexandria, Ind. The usual litters of lionesses in captivity are composed of but two or three whelps, so the arrival of quadruplets was naturally the main topic of conversation at Convention Hall yester-

The keepers, although busily engaged in caring for other animals, showed plainly that the event was one of much interest and importance, and kept a sharp lookout on the large but strong wooden box in which the mother and children were confined. Everything was hustle and bustle in and about Convention Hall yesterday, but when the carnival opens tonight everything will be in readiness. The "horned hosts" have provided almost every known conceivable attraction for the entertainment of their guests, from a horse twenty-four inches high and weighing twenty-nine pounds to "Electra," a woman that floats in the air. Orientals attired in the silken finery of the far east will mingle with Caucasians in twentieth century garb, more bewildering, perhaps, than the "crystal maze," which s to be another attraction.

Then there will be wild trained animals galore, not to forget the baby lions, so that both young and old ought to be able to find suitable amusement and chase away dull care within the confines of Convention Hall during the next two weeks.

Churchill of Wisconsin, while the three speakers who defended the negative side were Philip R. Hindman of Pennsylvania, Leslie C. Fuller of Michigan and Henry A. Gunderson of Wisconsin. The judges decided in favor of the affirmative side. The judges were Mr. Thomas H. Anderson, Mr. William F. Rhea and Mr. Samuel D. Woods. First honors were awarded to Philip R. AMUSEMENTS. SOUSA'S CONCERT-Bandmaster John

Philip Sousa and his clever band of musicians have been well received in Washington in times gone by, but it is questionable whether a more enthusiastic reception was ever accorded any one than that which was given both leader and organization at the Columbia Theater last night. As viewed from the stage the audience had the appearance of a political meeting or a memorial service at which seats were free. Every seat, both below and upstairs was taken, and in addition the spectators crowded every available inch of standing room. Outside the remarkable size of the audience, another noticeable thing was the strict attention paid to the rendition of the different numbers by the band. This demonstrated conclusively that it was a music-loving audience, and easily explains the enthusiasm that was continually bubbling over on acevening count of the splendid leadership and perfect harmony that was in evidence during the Bandmaster Sousa, when leader of the Marine Band, had the happy faculty of se-lecting programs which pleased the multi-tude that crowded the White House mall, and at the conclusion of last evening's con-cert it was the general comment that the compositions selected vied with their execution. There was enough of the classical or technical to please the thorough mu-sician, and in addition the popular airs were of the best and were unusually satisfying to the untrained ear. Time after time the spectators would break forth into wild ap-plause over the playing of one of the bandmaster's own compositions, which must have been most gratifying. As to John Philip Sousa's mannerisms, they are solely his own and are not out of place on account of their originality. With any other leader Sousa's gestures would be ridiculous, but with him they lend a certain amount of trimming to the selections that the people lous past. look for and want.

The original program embraced music of a high order, the gem of the evening un-doubtedly being the suite of three works under the titles, "The Coquette," "The Summer Girl" and "The Dancing Girl," Sousa's own compositions. As a descriptive piece it was convincing in its originality and simply entrancing in its harmonious melody. Outside of this number, the encores attracted the most attention. The first was "The Stars and Stripes Forever" and was recognized at the sounding of the first note. Then came the kangaroo song from "The Burgomaster," and the close attention given the piece by the people in the gallery was remarkable. The people who generally patronize the upper regions have whistled this song for the past two seasons and go wild over its rendition by the difwas a desire to hear the piece played by Sousa's organization, and throughout its rendition not a chirp was heard from the gallery. At the conclusion of the piece the applause continued for several minutes. Later on the pretty maiden song from "Florodora" was given and also the coon melody, "The Honeysuckle and the Bee."
The solosists of the evening were Arthur Pryor, on the trombone, Dorothy Hoyle, a clever violinist, and Maud Reese-Davies, vocalist. All three were above the average as to ability and entertaining powers and their greeting by the audience was cordial.

MR. RAKEMANN'S STRING QUARTET -Mr. Herman C. Rakemann and his associates of the Rakemann String Quartet-Mr. Oswald Welti, second violin; Mr. Jo-seph Finckel, viola, and Mr. Wenceslao Villaalpando, 'cello-offered the second program of their current series at the Shoreham Saturday night. The extremely bad weather which prevailed doubtless kept many patrons of the quartet from attend-ing. But the audience almost filled the banquet hall, nevertheless, and the general favor extended to the ten quartet numbers of the program indicated that Mr Rakemann's wholly commendable effort to popularize chamber music is already bearing

Haydn's quartet, op. 76, No. 4, and Mozart's quartet in G minor, for plane and three violins, were the most pretentious numbers of the evening. Both were admira-bly performed, but both were spoiled for music-lovers in the banquet hall-the first by the noisy entrance of late arrivals and the second by the persistent and assertive conversation of some of the audience. The field of chamber music is one of the richest in the whole range of musical composition. It embraces some of the most notable inspirations of del. Schumann, and more than all others, Mozart. But a program of such numbers faithfully interpreted and adequately performed did not suffice Saturday night to seat the audience promptly or command si-

The most appreciative responses of the evening were evoked by three brief selec-tions in the middle of the program—an adagio by Spohr, a conzonetta by Godard, and the scherzo from Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream." The first express-ed all the peculiar violin quality of the four instruments. The second was a veritable song, voiced without words. But the Mendelssohn selection was, all things con-sidered, the most delightful performance of ail. It was interpreted with all the lightness and sweetness suggested to fancy by the title, and the applause which rang through the hall when the quartet concluded indicated that the number had been generally appreciated. Mr. Charles Rabold was the vocal soloist His offerings included numbers by J. S. Bach, Beethoven, Brahms and Farewell, and were all well received. It was the Beethoven selection, however, which produced the purest tones and which was most applauded. Mrs. Joseph Finckel assisted the quartet at the plano in the last number of the program—the Mozart selection in G minor—and played with such vigor and expression as to put the instrument in complete accord with the violins.

THE GEORGETOWN ORCHESTRA .-Tomorrow night at the Congregational Church the Georgetown Orchestra will give its first concert this season. This organization, composed of local musicians, has had the longest existence of any similar body, and its work has for many years been so uniformly excellent that the title of amateur, with which it started, is hardly remembered except by those who have kept pace with its progress. Prof. Josef Kaspar, its conductor, takes a personal interest in its work, and to his careful and able leadership much of the success of the orchestra is due. The program tomorrow night will include Robert Cary Stearn's "Proces-Raff's "Im Walde" symphony, include Robert Cary Stearn's "Processional," Raff's "Im Walde" symphony, Wagner's "Rienzi" overture, and with Dr. Anton Gloetzner's Beethoven's imperial piano concerto. The other soloist will be Miss Katharine Pelton, who will sing a Gluck aria, accompanied by the orchestra, and a group of songs. and a group of songs.

The Saengerbund's Musicale. Last night's regular concert of the Washington Saengerbund was one of the most successful entertainments given by that organization during the current musical season. The program comprised two violin solos by Anton Kaspar, Bohm's "Cavatina" and Sarasate's "Ziegemnerweisen;" "Der Erlkoenig," by Miss Eleanor Simonds; "The Song of the Evening Star" and Schumann's "Wanderer," by Mr. J. H. Duffey; a duet, Allitzen's "Break, Diviner Light," by Miss Burkhart and Miss Simonds; Arditi's "Se Saran Rose" by Miss Carrie Burkhart, and one number by the bund, Isemann's "Steh soloists were enthusiastically greeted. The Isemann chorus, which was the opening number, was regarded as one of the most faithful interpretations offered by the Saengerbund. Mr. Henry Xander, conductor of the bund, directed the concert with vigor and discrimination.

At the general request of the bund President Frank Claudy is to deliver a lecture on Wagner's "Parsifal" at the next open meeting of the organization. TWENTIETH ANNUAL BANQUET AN ENJOYABLEHOCCASION.

Enlivening and Patriotic Toasts by a Number of Men of Promi-

A notable affair was the twentieth annual banquet of the District of Columbia Commandery of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion, held Saturday in the Nac tional Rifles' Armory. The occasion, as well as the surroundings, aroused the enthusiasm of the 400 and more members and guests who attended. The company assembled in the lower hall of the building, where the commander, General Ellis Spear received them, and then proceeded up stairs and were ushered into the large hall where the tables were set. As the doors to the banquet room were thrown open the orchestra in the gallery struck up "The Star Spangled Banner." The veterans and their guests of the lastily and joined with a will in singing the national anthem. At one of the tables, slightly raised above the level of the floor, sat the guests and officers of the order. Above the tables was a canopy formed of flags and illuminated with electric lights, while behind the presiding officers. siding officer was a large representation of the badge of the order. Prayer was of-fered by Chaplain James H. Bradford. General Spear acted as toastmaster. Eloquent and patricts speeches were made by a number of those present, the senti-ments awakening the memories of a glor-

Enlivening and Patriotic Toasts. Some formal toasts were responded to and then came the more informal part of the speech making. Both parts of the program were earnest and entertaining. The appeal to the love of country and the sentiments of patriotism were further enhanced by the ceremony of trooping the colors, which marked the close of the dinner. The orchestra again played "The Star Spangled Banned" and the members of the commandery, preceded by Major William P. Huxford, the recorder, marched about the room with the national flag and the commandery flag and then placed them on a stand behind the presiding officer.

The first toast of the evening, "American Liberty," was responded to by Mr. Chas. H. Prouty of the interstate commerce com-mission. "Our Commandery" formed the theme of an address by Rev. Dr. Asa S. Fiske. An original poem, "Grant's Burial," was read by Mr. Crammond Kennedy. Senator Hawley of Connecticut led the company in singing the national anthem. During the intervals of the speech making patriotic songs were sung. Responses to calls for speeches were made by Archbishop Ire-land, Gen. A BENEFIT ENTERTAINMENT.

Enjoyable Program Listened to at the National Theater. A large and representative audience seemed to thoroughly enjoy the program offered by Washington Aerie, No. 125, Fraternal Order of Eagles, at the New National Theater, last night, on the occasion of the first benefit of the organization. The entertainment was opened by an overture rendered by Prof. R. F. Wagner and orchestra, after which Rossa T. Down ing, worthy past president of the local aerie, explained the features of the order.

The program, which was lengthy, included George Howell's marionette act, W. A. Morsell in "coon" songs, Miss Anita Cluss in selections on the harp, Montague and West, entertainers; James Richmond Glenroy, known as the "man with the green gloves," in original monologue and songs, and Mrs. Alice J. Shaw and her twin daughters in whistling solos, duets and trios. Others taking part in the entertainment were H. S. Whitney, whose bass solo, "Forging the Anchor," was well received; Miss Susie Rocamora and John P. Rodgers of the Bijou Stock Company, Miss Kate V. Wilson of this city, John T. Sullivan of the Lafayette Stock Company, and Matt V. Kennedy. A quartet of local talent, consisting of Mrs. Margaret Nolan Martin, Mrs. Blanche Mattingly Rogers, Charles E. Myers and James J. Nolan, rendered several pleasing selections.

Those having the affair in charge were Worthy District Deputy Myer Fisher, chair-man; Rossa F. Downing, C. H. Dikeman, P. F. Carr, John Doyle Carmody, W. C. Sparks, Jacob Johnson, August Brill and G. Hector Clemes. It was nearly midnight when the last number on the long program was concluded

After the opening exercises and honoring the colors, the gospel hymon, "Throw Out the Life Line," was sung by the boys, and was made the basis of an instructive lesson by Mrs. M. D. Ellis. She described the life-saving methods and devices at ocean beaches as an illustration of the moral lines of helpfulness being thrown out by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, especially to boys, and urged the young wage earners to help in many boys in this city.

An old-fashioned spelling match, with Miss Lillian Ritter as teacher and Joseph Griffith and Ernest Brooks as captains, was another feature. It ended with the victory for Captain Brooks' class, although he was "spelled down" early in the contest.

Catarrh is a constitutional disease. originating in impure blood, and requires a constitutional remedy.

"I suffered from catarrh in the head and loss of appetite and sleep. My blood was thin and I felt bad all over most of the time. I decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla and now have no symptoms of catarrh, have a good appetite and sleep well. I heartily recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to all my friends." R.
